Mendlowitz' photography is true and varied. The geographical distribution of boats shown in the '09 & '10 editions makes this calendar of interest to any boater, boat lover, or marine photographer. Maynard Bray, a historian, authors a brief description of each month's feature, written in clear language and with a lot of background as to size, maker, date, features, and other building detail. These photos are on semi-gloss stock, quite suitable for mounting and framing. In this 2010 edition, there is a page stapled in with previews and an order form for the 2011 calendar, as well as screen savers, a postcard book, address book, 3 hardcover and 1 softcover photography books, and boxed note cards with Mendlowitz' marine photos.

I bought this calendar as a gift for a friend who owns a wood boat restoration business. Although he tends to do more wood power boat work, he has designed and built several wood sailing vessels (a Snipe for example).He was thrilled with this calendar and even knew one of the guys featured on one of the pages.

For more years than I care to recall, I have gotten the Calendar of Wooden Boats. Bray's photography is always beautiful, the boats different, unique and entertaining. I wouldn't know how to carry on the year without the lovely light, wood and grace of this calendar to greet me daily.
