Customer Reviews

The choices of 'ocean' figures that Sally and Stewart Walton have selected are an excellent selection. There is not too much cutting that would be laborious for a child, yet just enough detail in the chain to be used in the adult products. You can not beat the paper chains that you get for this price. The stencils can be used over and over again. The included paper's bright colors can be used for borders for scrapbooking pages or cards. I highly recommend this book for anyone interested in crafts!

This kit contains 12 different wild animal stencils on card stock weight paper. They are attached into the stapled booklet but you can cut them out if desired. I am choosing to keep mine attached for now and can use the stencils right in the book. It also comes with 8 pieces of brightly patterned paper to use to make the chains. The chains made with that paper make a chain 4 animals-long. I look forward to making longer chains with paper that I supply. My kids are having fun making these with me. For kids to make these by themselves they need to be able to trace a stencil on their own and cut with scissors following a curving line. Also remember that to make long chains requires many layers of paper and the thicker the paper the harder it is to cut. Since my kids can't yet do these on their own we make them together with them directing the stencil and paper used and with me doing the tracing and the cutting. The animals are: giraffe, elephant, flamingo, monkey, zebra, lion, kangaroo, snake, raccoon, camel, polar bear and penguin. There are other books in this series with different stencils. I wish the dinosaur book was back in print.

The book is small but it comes with different designs and patterns on how to cut paper chains. Elementary school children have a blast cutting the patterns. They can be hang around the classroom or use for an activity.

Very cute books with great activities for the entire family. The kids really liked the different animals and he change from the normal paper chains.
