This book was given as a gift to a child participating in the Summer Reading Program at the Nocona Public Library, Nocona, Texas. The little girl receiving it was so happy she didn't want to put it down.

BISCUIT MEETS THE CLASS PET is a sweet little book at the late Kindergarten Reading Level. The story is about how Biscuit meets Nibbles. A good portion of the story is told through the art because of the limited vocabulary that is used. Biscuit, as it turns out, is a bit jealous of bunny. The story ends after Nibbles gets away for a little while but is found. BISCUIT MEETS THE CLASS PET has soft pastel artwork and 133 words. That might sound really intimidating except for the fact that many of the words are 'Woof' and 'hop'. Here's sample text from two pages. I tried to choose some of the most complicated text. Nibbles found your bone and your ball and your bed. Woof, woof! And you found Nibbles. Woof! It's not a fabulous story but new readers will probably like it. Certainly the artwork is appealing.

Lovely story that I use in preschool and early grade school reading groups for low achieving readers. This story holds the interest of challenged students who have slipped through the cracks of standard classroom reading. I would like to see this series use more characters with different skin tones since my students are Hispanic and Haitian origin. But the kids do not seem to mind as they concentrate on the puppy and his adventures. Even low students can tell me what Biscuit says and can role play Biscuit.

My 6 year old grand-daughter is very happy with her new Biscuit books...these will help her with learning her reading skills and will earn her points in the Summer Reading Program at the Cincinnati Public Library!

Purchased this for a reading partner and found that the number and type of words are great for new readers. He really loves it because he likes bunnies so this Biscuit book is great for him.

Discover biscuit with my older kid and now that my little one is in P-K she is in love too, we have almost all the collection.

My granddaughter loves the Biscuit stories. Every bedtime she can hear a new story, and she never tires of them.

Cute story, toddlers to Kindergarten love it. Biscuit books are exc and happy stories for small children
