I couldn't decide whether to do 3 stars or 4 so I rounded up. This calendar is not quite what I expected. The pictures are not as high quality as I would have liked, though they are fine. Granted, I am quite picky about photo quality since my husband is a photographer. It has a sort of Grunge/Scrapbook look to it which I did like. The spaces for writing down appointments are a little smaller than I'm used to. The dates are numbered at the bottom center of the space, rather than top left like I'm used to, but that's not too big of a deal. It says it's a 19 month calendar which means it has mini grid calendars of the months of June-December 2011. There is a free widget you can put on your computer with the code found in the calendar. It puts a calendar on your desktop (you can't write anything on it, it just tells you the date) with a picture of a character from the movie. You are supposed to be able to get a free Wallpaper but I couldn't get it to download (I'm not terrible computer savvy though, so it's probably just me! Overall, this would be a good calendar for die-hard Potter fans.

Even though the books have come to an end and the movies are completed, Harry continues to be a part of our lives. We got this calendar for our Hogwarts lovers and they love it. I hope that this will continue for many years to come.

I purchased the 2012 Harry Potter calendar for my daughter for Christmas since she is a big fan of the book series and movies. She and I were both a little disappointed when we realized that most of the pictures in the 2012 calendar are from the "Deathly Hallows, Part 1" movie and not from the "Deathly Hallows, Part 2" movie. Many of the pictures from this calendar are the same as the 2011 calendar which she had last year.

I love my Harry Potter calendars, which is why I buy a new one each year. However, someone goofed this year. I was filling in birthdates, got to December and found not one but two December 23rds. Proof reader for that month must have been getting tired. Gee, suppose they might send me a free calendar next year for calling this to their attention?????
