Customer Reviews

My daughter is 8 months old and loves this book. Perhaps the negative reviews were from parents of slightly older children, but it's perfect if you have a kid that's spending more time working on her physical milestones than her sitting still and listening skills. My daughter is bored with most of the books that have too few words (she's well past the Look Look series), but a full-length picture book is too long, unless it's right before bed, in which case Goodnight Moon is our go-to. This is a perfect length for daytime storytime, my daughter likes the illustrations, and she reacts to "llama" as if it is the most hilarious word she's ever heard. I think the rhymes flow just fine (not as well as the longer books, but better than most books geared for this age). My husband and I are racking our brains trying to figure out where the wrong word was used in the book. Feet instead of teeth/fangs, I guess? I mean, llamas have pretty pointy toes, too, but if the author pointing out llama llama's feet instead of costume fangs in order to get a rhyme with "trick or treat" is a dealbreaker, I suppose that you'll hate this book. I will concede that this would not hold an older child's attention at all, but if your kid can't sit still through one of the longer llama llamas, or is teething and destroying books like a puppy, this one is worth having. Reading to my daughter is still important, even if she'd much rather be cruising around the coffee table. Also, Halloween is the greatest holiday, and there aren't a ton of Halloween books for very young kiddos (she also has and loves Spooky, which holds her attention because it is textured).

Picked this up from Target for my two-year old son, to help introduce the concept of trick or treating as we're going with his older nephews this year. I'm not sure why the book has such mixed reviews. I think it does a great job capturing the activities of the season: choosing a Halloween costume, carving pumpkins, trick or treating. Which is exactly what I was hoping for, an illustrated book to help my son understand something he's never done before. And the illustrations are perfect, along with the text: Llama Llama Halloween Mini monsters, ghoulies green. What would Llama like to be? An astronaut? A bumblebee? Pick a pumpkin, scoop out holes. Pour some candy into bowls. Who's that with the pointy feet? It's Llama Llama! Trick or treat! One reviewer commented about a misspelled word? I'm guessing she was referring to "ghoulies," maybe thinking the author meant "ghouls." They both mean the same thing; either is appropriate. Update: Maybe it's the "pointy feet," line. Is it supposed to be "who's that with the pointy teeth?" Didn't even consider that. I may have to throw that in there when I'm reading. That sounds better, and if it's truly supposed to be "teeth," that's a HUGE error.

OK, so I don't love it but my 3 year old definitely does! For those reading other reviews, this is a board book NOT a full length book like the original llama llama red pajama and others. It is just a few pages of rhymes; but if you want something your baby or toddler will enjoy (and quickly memorize so he can "read it himself"), it is a great option. My son likes the llama llama story books AND the board books and I appreciate a less costly version of little holiday rhymes and treats!! Definitely worth the couple of bucks it costs for the joy and inclusion into the holiday fun that it brings the child!

My family loves the llama books! This board book is definitely geared towards a smaller child. I got it for my one year old to read to him at Halloween. My older son (6) enjoyed listening to me read it to his brother but it definitely not something he would pick up on his own. The book is a sturdy board book, the pictures are wonderful. Anna Dewdney did another great job! If you have a little llama fan they will definitely need to add this book to their collection.

This is the 4th Llama story I've bought for her. I was pleasantly surprised when her mother said "oh, another Llama Llama book - we'll read this tonight" and the little girl just lit up. Her mother told me "she loves her Llama books."

My girls love Llama Llama books and I especially like the board books for younger kids (my 3-year old likes them but they are geared more for my 19-month old). It is fun to get a book for each holiday.

These books are short and I wish they were a page or two longer or with more dialogue because my son loves them. Basically Llama is getting ready to trick or treat for Halloween and at the end he says Llama Llama Trick or Treat! There isn't more to say, but I think they are worth the money because we read it over and over and over and....

I bought 10 of these and handed them out at my toddlers "school" class. They loved them and the price was cheaper than anywhere else. I buy all of my books from ! The story line is a little boring, but my 2 year old will look at the pages and we talk about the different costumes.
