I can only give this a 3 star because it's changed. Not as I expected. I've had a few of these before and loved them. There used to be an adorable picture and a clever, funny caption for each day. That's what made it so great. Meg's captions were so funny. This year the calendar is big and beautiful, the boxes for each day are big enough to write in but no picture or caption for each day. Just the one picture and caption for the month. I'm disappointed. I hang this on the wall by our refrigerator so when we're waiting for our water bottles to fill up we have something funny to read. I read somewhere that Meg had twins so maybe she doesn't have time for captions. Meg, I miss the way it used to be.

I always look forward to putting up this calendar at work and having my pediatric patients flip to see which cute animal is on their birthday. I'm really disappointed to see only one picture (albeit adorable) for each month. Maybe if life with twins ever calms down Meg will go back to the old layout.

I used to buy the wall calendar for work. People would come in to my room to look at it when they needed a smile. I saw the new one just now and was very disappointed that there is not a photo for each day, so did not buy it. Please go back to the old format!

Absolutely adorable, but I was sad that the extra 2014 page didn't have a cute animal on it. So now I'm stuck from September-December with a bunch of words instead of a picture of a cute duckie. However, I flipped through the rest of the calendar and its pretty darn cute.

DISAPPOINTED!!! As others have written, Cute Overload calendars in the past have had one picture for almost every day of the year, in addition to the big photo on the 'top' page for each month; this calendar has only one picture for the entire page that shows the dates. It was completely understandable that the calendar's creator took a year off of calendar-making due to the happy event of having twins, but if she couldn't keep up the high cuteness standards she'd set previously for the 2015 version it would have been more fair to her calendar's fans to skip this year as well. I asked for this calendar for Christmas, so I didn't have the opportunity to see how the calendar had been changed before obtaining it. Had I shopped for this myself I would--after looking at the pix on the back cover--would not have purchased this. I started to give 2 stars just because of the scanty cute pictures in this iteration of the Cute Overload calendar, but I'm really, really disappointed (I was so gleeful when I was taking the plastic wrap off!!) so 1 star it is. (Boooooooo, hiss.)UPDATE/EDIT: having received an e-mail from telling me that someone had found my comment 'helpful', I returned to re-read what I'd written and decided to 'up' the rating to "3 stars" because I think it's fairer to rate the calendar against its competitors (i.e. the scores of other 1-pic-per-month-cute-animal-calendars) rather than solely based on my disappointment b/c of how GREAT!! the Cute Overload calendar USED to be. I won't buy next year's version if it's not back to pre-2015 standards, but the Cute Overload staff don't really deserve a 1-star rating for their efforts.

I've gotten this calendar every year ever since it started. Not this year though, as they shifted away from the page a day format. Sorry Meg, but you had a good thing. Maybe next year.

What happened to the Cute Overload calendar I LOVED D: ... I buy this calendar every year, and came to to buy it again, but it's changed. It doesn't have all the pictures, only 1 for every month. Now it's just a cute calendar, not an cute OVERLOAD calendar. I'm not buying it till they bring the old version back! So sad!

Falling apart and the phrases inside are too "I'm trying hard to make these pictures cute." The pictures speak for themselves, and the captions such as "cute rule #4: if you're wearing boots, you're cute" are annoying.
