Laundry hung on a line in the room as the snow swirled outside the window. There was a dress, stockings, pants, and even pantaloons, but nothing seemed to bother Anna as she peered dreamily through the window. But one night ... / Anna's sleigh / slips up the street. / Her face is cold. / The world is dark. / Mama smiles. • Living in a room full of laundry was nothing in comparison to the world that would soon open up to that tiny, frail girl. She swirled and lifted her arms over her head as she auditioned, but this time would be hers. Yes! The work began and Anna was willing, more than willing. She was soon ready for the stage, but she was so unlike the other girls. "Her legs too thin, / her feet all wrong" / and ooh, those toes! • The years began to pass by once again. One, two, three, four, five ...
